This initiative reflects Miller EG Design’s broader mission: to create more connected, informed, and empowered communities—especially in regions where critical resources are often limited. By supporting healthcare partners like NGMC Habersham, MEGD seeks to directly contribute to the long-term vitality of Georgia’s rural areas.

“At Miller EG Design, we believe design has a responsibility beyond aesthetics—it’s about improving the lives of people and helping communities thrive,” said Tim Miller, Principal at Miller EG Design. “Our support of Northeast Georgia Health System is one way we can uplift the places and people who are often underserved.”

The firm’s work in wayfinding and experiential graphics is grounded in the belief that access—to information, to spaces, and to care—is fundamental. Supporting healthcare institutions that serve rural populations is a natural extension of this philosophy.

“You are helping us improve healthcare in this community, and we are truly thankful for that,” shared Kim Frisbie, Philanthropy Partner at NGHS, in a recent letter of appreciation.

Miller EG Design’s commitment goes beyond design—it’s about being a partner in building stronger, healthier, and more resilient communities. Whether through thoughtful signage systems that guide patients through complex hospital campuses, or direct engagement with organizations dedicated to public health, MEGD is proud to play a role in shaping a better future for all Georgians.

"You and your organization are a major part of NGHS' ongoing expansion projects and we appreciate your continued partnership in all aspects!" -Karen Bradfield at NGHS
