The formation of StockTA Pte. Ltd. marks an important milestone, providing the business with its own operational, financial, and corporate infrastructure. The Singapore company will manage platform development, subscriptions, partnerships, marketing, contracts, and international expansion.

StockTA.com is a software and market-analysis platform for self-directed investors. It provides market data, research features, technical-analysis tools, and educational content designed to help users conduct their own market research. The platform does not execute trades, hold customer funds, or provide personalized investment advice.

The joint venture draws on the capabilities of both shareholders. StockTA LLC will continue to drive the platform's product direction and market-analysis capabilities, while Global One Media Group will contribute expertise in digital distribution, media production, investor communications, and audience development.

"This joint venture brings together complementary strengths: StockTA.com's product vision and commitment to accessible market-analysis tools, and Global One Media Group's experience in digital distribution, content and audience development. Our goal is to build StockTA.com into a stronger and more valuable platform for self-directed investors around the world," said Kevin Steuer, Managing Partner of StockTA.com.

StockTA.com Establishes Singapore Joint Venture to Accelerate the Growth of Its Market-Analysis Platform

Singapore provides StockTA.com with a globally connected base for its next phase of growth. Its established technology ecosystem, transparent business environment, position as a leading international financial centre, and proximity to major Asia-Pacific markets make it a strong location for continued product innovation and international expansion. From Singapore, the company aims to strengthen relationships with users and partners across Asia-Pacific while extending its reach into other markets.

“We see Singapore as a long-term base for building StockTA’s business internationally. By combining StockTA’s technical-analysis capabilities with our distribution network and media expertise, we aim to reach more self-directed investors and develop new partnerships across Asia-Pacific and beyond,” said Bastien Boulay, Co-Founder and CEO of Global One Media Group.

Looking ahead, the company plans to enhance StockTA.com’s stock-screening, charting, and technical-analysis tools, broaden market coverage, and introduce new user-focused features. It also intends to grow its free and subscription-based user community, expand educational and market-related content, and develop strategic commercial and distribution partnerships.

For existing StockTA.com users, clients, and partners, the platform and its services will continue to operate as usual, with no disruption resulting from the formation of StockTA Pte. Ltd.

For Global One Media Group, the joint venture creates an opportunity to participate in the long-term development of a scalable software and media platform, building on its established investor communications and distribution activities.
