MIAMI, FL, UNITED STATES, September 4, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- In celebration of Hispanic Heritage Month, Printed Word Reviews has announced a dedicated Spanish/English bilingual section for its upcoming October issue, hitting newsstands and digital platforms on September 30th.

> We are thrilled to launch our Spanish version this year and present these exceptional authors and books on an international stage in Guadalajara"
>
> Ted Olczak, Publisher of the Printed Word Reviews magazine

The front cover highlights acclaimed children's author Mireya Saldúa and her dual-language title, Fun Day with Misa / Un Día Divertido con Misa. This special feature honors the rich tapestry of Hispanic literature, art, and storytelling, bridging cultures and languages in one immersive reading experience.

In addition to its standard global subscriber base, the October issue will receive exclusive bonus distribution at both the Miami Book Fair and the Guadalajara International Book Fair in Mexico, where Printed Word Reviews will officially introduce its new Spanish-language edition, PWR en Español.

Inside the October Special Edition:

* Dual-Language Reviews: Side-by-side English and Spanish coverage of independently published titles, both backlist and groundbreaking new releases.

* Author Spotlights: Exclusive interviews with Hispanic and Latinx authors, poets, and translators shaping the modern literary landscape.

* Cultural Essays: Commentary on the power of translation, identity, and the evolving world of bilingual publishing.

“We are thrilled to launch our Spanish version this year and present these exceptional authors and books on an international stage in Guadalajara," said Ted Olczak, publisher of Printed Word Reviews. "Our mission has always been to serve as a vital bridge between brilliant writers and passionate readers, and this bilingual issue expands that commitment.”

Readers can subscribe to a print copy or access the digital edition online starting September 30 at https://www.printedwordreviews.com/magazine. Join the conversation online using #PrintedWordReviewsENEspanol.
