The Inc. 5000 ranks companies based on verified revenue growth over a three-year period, with applicants submitting financial documentation for review before a ranking is issued. Very few bullion dealers of PV Bullion & Gold Exchange's size have appeared on the list.

"This ranking reflects thousands of individual transactions with people building or liquidating bullion holdings, from a handful of coins to a substantial position in bars," said Carmine Mannino, owner of PV Bullion & Gold Exchange. "We built this company by paying people fairly the first time, so they come back and send their family and friends. The growth is a byproduct of that, not the goal."

PV Bullion & Gold Exchange holds other third-party credentials, including verification on Bloomberg's Legal Entity Identifier (LEI) system, a global registry used by banks and financial regulators to confirm a business is a real, registered legal entity, and NGC Authorized Coin Dealer status, an industry credential from one of the two major third-party coin grading services.

The company has operated continuously as a Florida corporation since 2021, serving clients across Northeast Florida under the Ponte Vedra Coin name before its 2026 rebrand to PV Bullion & Gold Exchange.
