Sunny Glen Children's Home Invites Supporters to Leave a Legacy of Hope During National Make-A-Will Month

A planned gift can help carry Sunny Glen's mission forward for children and families for generations to come

Children enjoy an outdoor activity at Sunny Glen Children's Home, where generations of support have helped provide care, stability, and hope to children in need.

TX, UNITED STATES, September 7, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The impact a person leaves behind is not always measured by what they give today. Sometimes, it is found in the lives they continue to touch years into the future.

During National Make-A-Will Month this August, Sunny Glen Children's Home is encouraging supporters to consider how the values and causes that matter to them today can continue making a difference for generations to come.

For many people, creating or updating a will is first about caring for family and loved ones. It can also be a way to remember the organizations and causes that have been meaningful throughout their lives.

Including Sunny Glen in an estate plan can be simpler than many people realize. Supporters may choose to include the children's home in a will or trust, name it as a beneficiary of an IRA, life insurance policy, or investment account, or give through real estate, securities, mineral rights, or a charitable remainder trust.

A large estate is not required to make a meaningful difference. A planned gift can be a specific amount, a percentage of an estate, or a beneficiary designation made through a financial institution. Many of these gifts are arranged today and given later, allowing supporters to plan for the future without affecting their day-to-day finances.

What matters most is the decision to carry something meaningful forward.

Since 1936, Sunny Glen has served approximately 25,000 children, providing care, stability, counseling, and support during times when they needed it most. That work has been made possible in part by generations of people who chose to invest not only in the children being served at the time, but also in those who would come after them.

Planned giving offers another way to continue that legacy.

A future gift can help ensure that when a child needs safety, care, counseling, or a place to begin again, support will still be there. National Make-A-Will Month offers a natural opportunity to review an existing will, speak with family members and professional advisors, and think about the people and causes you want your legacy to remember.

A legacy does not have to begin with a large estate or an extraordinary gift.

Sometimes, it can begin with one sentence in a will.

If you want to learn how to include Sunny Glen in your will or estate plan, get sample wording, or learn about the 1936 Society, call Sunny Glen Children's Home at 956-399-5356, Monday through Friday from 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., or learn more about planned giving.

Those who are not ready to make a planned gift but would still like to help can support Sunny Glen today through its online donation page.
