

WorldVentures Opens for Business in Ireland

/EINPresswire.com/ Plano, TX – December 15, 2012 – WorldVentures, the world's largest direct-seller of vacation and entertainment club memberships, is proud to announce its expansion into Ireland today. This most recent opening boosts WorldVentures' international presence to 22 countries, and has fulfilled a long-awaited goal for the company's independent business owners based in the United Kingdom.

"Launching in Ireland is a significant part of our global expansion plan," said WorldVentures' Co-Founder and CEO Mike Azcue. "We are proud to further our reach and create an ever-expanding team of ambassadors that will promote opportunities for local entrepreneurs to start their own businesses, as well as gain exclusive and affordable access to some of the most desirable locations and hottest resorts around the world."

WorldVentures' entrance into Ireland represents a chance for those interested in building an independent business to sell club memberships to those truly passionate about travel. The company does significant strategic planning prior to opening in a new country, ensuring it has a viable market and is compliant with all local regulations. WorldVentures' current markets include countries in Europe, North America, Asia, and Africa.

WorldVentures club members enjoy one-of-a-kind curated group vacation experiences designed and managed by Rovia, an award-winning online travel agency. Founded by two direct selling veterans and visionaries, Mike Azcue and Wayne Nugent, WorldVentures is built on three guiding principles: a foundation of superior travel and vacation products for customers; fair and transparent economic opportunity for its consultants; and a genuine commitment to community coupled with good corporate citizenship.
