

Smartphone Car Mount Giant, MobiValet Announces MobiTote for Tablets

/EINPresswire.com/ MobiValet Inc., known for their innovative smart phone car mount, is announcing the MobiTote for tablet computers, just in time for the International CES conference in Las Vegas January 8-13, 2013.

MobiValet is expanding their product line to include the new and innovative MobiTote. In partnership with designer Allen Hu, this innovative tablet case can be used in your vehicle, at home, or at the office. MobiTote will be available January of 2013.

Tablet Computer Case

With patent pending in the US, China, and Europe, the MobiTote is durable and designed with the versatility of tablet computers in mind. More than just a protective case, the MobiTote's innovative design is more functional than any other traditional tablet cover on the market. Perhaps one of the most useful features is the adjustable strap for attaching the tablet computer on the back of headrests for vehicles—a must for parents needing to keep their children entertained on long road trips. With the adjustable strap, it can be hung on surfaces throughout the home, the office, and any place in between. The MobiTote also incorporates a built-in adjustable stand for desktop use.

"Imagine the possibilities of a true "mobile" case for your tablet – like having a portable workstation on the fly," says MobiValet co-founder and Executive Vice President, Danielle LaFargue.

The MobiTote is easy to install and mess free. The tablet cover is designed so it can be used without adhesive. Just take it out of the packaging, adjust the strap or stand to the desired positions, and the MobiTote is ready to go!

Just like the original MobiValet smartphone holder, the MobiTote is the first of its kind. The MobiTote goes one step further than current tablet cover solutions – a tablet computer case that is also a "mount and a stand."
