Whiskey Would Announces Midwest Touring Expansion and New Singles

Columbus country rock band Whiskey Would expands Midwest touring activity, highlights three recent singles, and pursues national touring opportunities.

COLUMBUS, OH, UNITED STATES, September 10, 2026 / EINPresswire.com/ -- Country rock band Whiskey Would is expanding its touring activity across the Midwest while highlighting three recent singles as the band develops its regional presence and pursues additional live performance opportunities.

Combining Country, Rock, Southern Rock, and Blues influences, Whiskey Would performs original music alongside fan-favorite covers. The band's live sets are designed for festivals, fairs, casinos, and live music venues across the Midwest.

New Singles

Whiskey Would's current singles include “Whiskey Woman,” “Ride Today,” and “Memphis Dream.”

The songs are available on major streaming platforms and showcase the band's blend of modern Country, classic Rock, and Southern Blues influences.

The recent releases give listeners an introduction to Whiskey Would's musical direction as the band continues expanding its reach through live performances and regional touring.

Musical Influences

Whiskey Would cites influences ranging from Carrie Underwood and Miranda Lambert to Journey, Heart, and Kansas.

These artists represent a range of Country and Rock influences that contribute to Whiskey Would's approach to Country, Rock, Southern Rock, and Blues.

Expanding Across the Midwest

Whiskey Would is focusing its touring activity across Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Kentucky, Illinois, and surrounding Midwest markets.

The band is pursuing opportunities with festivals, fairs, casinos, live music venues, promoters, and national touring acts while continuing to introduce its music to new audiences.

“Whiskey Would is built for big stages,” said Brower Entertainment. “They have the sound, the professionalism, and the live energy that national acts look for in an opener.”
