TheSinging.Bible Website Surpasses One Million Song Plays Within Two Weeks of Launch

TheSinging.Bible, launched on August 25, 2026, surpassed one million plays within two weeks of launch, with listeners in 198 countries without paid advertising.

COLORADO SPRINGS, CO, UNITED STATES, September 9, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- TheSinging.Bible, which launched on August 25, 2026, surpassed one million song plays within two weeks of launch.

What is TheSinging.Bible?

TheSinging.Bible (pronounced The Singing Dot Bible) offers musical renditions of all 1,189 chapters of Scripture, sung word for word in 16 musical styles: Praise, Country, Hip-Hop, African Dance, Children's Choir, Sea Shanty, Barbershop Quartet, Spanish Alabanza and eight more. The music is available on the site to anyone free of charge.

> "Something's happening that is bigger than than we are. The first week we had 11,000 plays. The second week we had over a million. People are eager to hear and share the Word of God."

These 16 musical versions of the entire Bible, each sung in both male and female voices, add up to 38,048 individual chapter recordings, or 3,600 hours of produced Scripture music—about five months of continuous listening without repeating a recording.

"The idea behind TheSinging.Bible is actually very simple," said Ron Forseth, Founder and Executive Producer. "Take the Bible—all of it—and let people experience the Word of God through music in various styles. What wasn't simple was producing 32 different renditions from beginning to end."

Human-Led. AI-Assisted.

The extraordinary volume of music was made possible by a global team of more than 20 humans: producers, software engineers, quality-control specialists, managers and digital strategists, working with an array of modern AI tools to create and polish the recordings. While the technology made the volume of music possible, people remained at the center of producing, managing, reviewing and publishing it.

“These tools have allowed our team to undertake something that would previously have been practically impossible,” Forseth said. “With a heroic effort by the team working long hours, human producers and reviewers have accomplished the unthinkable: 24 million words of Scripture put to music. AI makes the scale possible. People have made the project possible.”

The lyrics are Scripture itself, using the Singing Bible Edition (SBE), an edition of the Berean Standard Bible. The full text of each chapter can also be displayed on screen while the music plays.

Designed to Make Scripture Easier to Hear—and Remember

The project grew from a simple observation: human beings have been using music to communicate for thousands of years.
“Music has an extraordinary capacity to make words stay with us,” Forseth said. “Our hope is that TheSinging.Bible helps Scripture find its way into hearts, places and moments where people might not otherwise sit down and read—the car, the kitchen, a hospital room, a child’s bedside, a walk, a workout or the few quiet minutes at the beginning of a day.”

Bibles For The World, a Colorado Springs-based ministry, was an early supporter of the project. Its CEO, John Pudaite, believes in innovative approaches to Bible distribution. “We are thrilled to see people in 194 countries engaging with God’s Word through music,” he said.

Visitors do not need to subscribe, create an account or install software to listen to the entire library. They visit the website, choose a Bible book and chapter, pick a musical style and voice, and press Play. When one chapter ends, the next begins automatically.

Every recording also has its own shareable link, allowing users to send a friend a specific chapter or verse in a specific musical style and voice.
Comments from listeners include:

“I love music, and I love the Bible, so being able to combine the two is truly out of this world. What an incredible and creative way to experience God’s Word!”

“I’m a rocker deep in my personality and listening to the Word of God in hard rock style is exactly as I imagined it sounding.”

“WOW!!! Never heard anything like this before. The music is mind-blowing. I listened to every genre of music, male and female voices and tried out various combinations.”

“I am by no means a fan of AI, but using it for this purpose is fantastic!”

“I love this. Where have you been?!”

“I am in tears.”

“Something is happening here that’s bigger than we are,” Forseth said. “The first week we had 11,000 plays. The second week we had over a million. People are eager to hear and share the Word of God.”

The complete Bible is also available in Spanish in the Alabanza style, with another style soon to be released.
