AOJ Language School is a fully online Japanese language school operated by Attain Corporation, the developer of the Japanese e-learning course “Attain Online Japanese,” which has attracted more than 200,000 learners on the global online learning platform Udemy.

The school combines on-demand video lessons, available 24 hours a day, with two 90-minute live classes per week taught by qualified Japanese-language instructors. This flexible learning format allows students from around the world to study Japanese according to their own schedules while receiving regular guidance and interaction through live classes.

The video learning materials are available with support in English, Chinese, Vietnamese, and Portuguese, enabling students to study Japanese from the beginner level through advanced levels with support in languages they are familiar with.
For the Fall 2026 semester, AOJ Language School held two online information sessions on Saturday, September 12, 2026, to introduce the school to prospective students.

However, because AOJ Language School accepts students from around the world, it can be difficult for all prospective students to attend a live information session at a fixed time due to time differences, work, school, and other scheduling conflicts.
Some prospective students may also wish to review the information at their own pace, particularly when the session is conducted in English. To make the information accessible to a wider audience, AOJ Language School has released the information session video on YouTube. The video introduces AOJ Language School, its curriculum, school schedule, available courses, enrollment procedures, and the special Fall 2026 enrollment campaign.

AOJ Language School has welcomed more than 500 students from countries and regions around the world. Through its combination of high-quality learning materials, experienced instructors, multilingual learning support, and interactive live classes, the school provides an online environment designed to help students continue learning Japanese over the long term.
Prospective students who watch the information session video are welcome to submit questions at any time via email or the inquiry form on the AOJ Language School website.
