

New Gaming Website BetBomb.com Goes 'All In'

/EINPresswire.com/ BetBomb.com is a new website that combines poker style wagering with sports betting. You can bet that any fan of poker or sports will love the next prize up for grabs, paid tickets to the 2013 World Series of Poker's main event.

There are no shortage of both poker or sports books websites, all offering users the same thing: a formulaic interface run from an offshore company. BetBomb.com is the first site to truly combine poker with sports and do so in a uniquely entertaining way, while headquartered in the United States. Sports betting and poker are a perfect match, and now users can enjoy the skill of poker with the thrill of sports.

CEO and Co-Founder Patrick Gray competed in the 2012 WSOP and wanted to give BetBomb.com's users the same chance at a truly great experience. "I beat out over 6,000 of the best poker players in the world last year and had the greatest time doing it. I wanted to give that same opportunity to the loyal users of BetBomb.com. I was even featured on ESPN sitting next to Daniel Negreanu where I held my own for multiple levels. He was an amazing poker player and a great guy who brought charisma to the table. This year we hope to have multiple poker players representing BetBomb.com at the main event."

BetBomb.com is all of the excitement of betting on your favorite sports teams with none of the gamble. Players can make picks against real spreads, lines and totals for both major league and college sports. The service is absolutely free and players compete for terrific prizes.

BetBomb.com strives to be the greatest, most professional, totally free and most importantly completely legal betting site on the internet.
