Tennessee Farm Honors Dolly Parton Legacy in One-of-a-Kind Fall Corn Maze

Special Dolly Day Celebration Planned for September 25

SPRINGFIELD, TN, UNITED STATES, September 21, 2026 / EINPresswire.com/ -- When the owners of Honeysuckle Hill Farm first approached Dolly Parton Enterprises with the idea of honoring the country music legend in their corn maze, they had no idea how special the approval would become.

Known as Nashville's Music City Corn Maze, this year's feature is especially meaningful. The Alsup family started working on a request to use Dolly Parton's name, image, and likeness as part of their fall attraction two years ago. "We got approval in March and cut the maze in July," said Jeff Alsup, second-generation farmer. "No one ever imagined she would not be here to see it this fall."

Dolly Parton sent a video message welcoming friends and families to the farm to enjoy walking through the tall stalks of this life-size puzzle of the entertainer.

Honeysuckle Hill Farm is opening its corn maze a day early to honor Dolly Day on September 25th. "Our hope is that our guests will celebrate this global event by enjoying our entire farm. All donations will be given to Imagination Library," said Alsup.

Each year Honeysuckle Hill Farm recognizes a country music artist as the blueprint of their corn maze. Previous years included designs for Lanie Wilson, Luke Bryan, and Reba, to name a few.

Nashville's Music City Corn Maze opens to the public

September 25 through November 1. They have several other fall attractions on their 60-acre farm. To plan your trip, visit www.honeysucklehillfarm.com.
