

Vaginal Mesh Continues Nationwide Outreach Campaign to Texas, Houston, Dallas

/EINPresswire.com/ The Vaginal Mesh Helpline www.vaginalmeshhelpline.com has launched a major outreach campaign to locate all Texas women with injuries from a Prolene mesh implanted after 2001. the goal, according to L Spitzer who runs the helpline "is to make sure all injured Texas women get an experienced Houston vaginal mesh lawyer and file their vaginal mesh lawsuit".

The horrors of the mesh coming into the Vaginal Mesh Helpline ,Texas on a daily are horrific. The helpline is reaching out to the major cities of Texas as well as the spanish speaking areas with abogados de vaginal mesh.

According to the Southeast Texas Record a Texarcana woman has sued for the vaginal mesh due to increased incontinence and injury. Lawsuits are being filed by Texas women from Houston, San Antonio, Dallas, Austin, Fort Worth, TX, El Paso, Arlington, Austin, Corpus Christi, Plano, Garland, TX, Lubbock, Laredo, Irving, Amarillo, and Brownsville. "We need to make sure all women in these cities with a Prolene mesh know the mesh lawsuit trials have begun and must file their Transvaginal mesh lawsuit asap. Some of the major Spanish speaking areas include: Houston, Dallas, San Antonio and El Paso. The beginning primary focus will be on locating women with vaginal mesh failure in Houston, Dallas and Austin. Many women are seeing a Houston vaginal mesh lawyer T.V ad and learning that their implanted mesh is causing all the agony they have been experiencing for years. "It is a shame that their doctors have not been more helpful". Says Spitzer."We must help them locate a Texas doctor and lawyer."

Another Texas woman filed a transvaginal mesh lawsuit against Boston Scientific Corp. Uphold Vaginal Support System. 1000's of women have joined the MDL against Boston Scientific, American Medical Systems (AMS), Ethicon, Bard, UGYTEX and Coviden.

In Beaumont, TX we see a transvaginal mesh lawsuit. The Southeast Texas Record reported in March that another Texas woman filed a Texas vaginal mesh lawsuit.

Another transvaginal mesh lawsuit was filed in U.S. District Court, Eastern District of Texas (Marshall) on October 17, 2012 alleging vaginal mesh side effects. Ethicon, Inc. was named as the defendant. This woman joins 1000's of women from Texas who have had defective vaginal mesh products ruin their lives. Women have seen chronic incontinence, urinary tract infections and painful intercourse after the implant has eroded into either their vaginal wall, bladder or bowel.

We cannot impress how important it is to send a message and file your vaginal mesh lawsuit.

The Texas outreach program is seeking to help Texas women implanted with a failed mesh locate a lawyer and a vaginal mesh Texas doctor. To speak to a female medical social worker and be connected to a Texas mesh lawsuit lawyer call 1 877 522-2123
