Followers of the Chinese Zodiac are well aware that the 'Year of the Snake' is about to commence February 10th and is expected to January 30, 2014. For the uninitiated but curious, the Infographic gives more insight about it. The Chinese Zodiac is a repeating pattern of 12 elements that relates each year to a particular animal and its observed attributes.

However, to make effective use of this traditional system it is necessary to know that elements like water, fire, metal, wood and earth are associated with each year and it is equally important to know the element to make accurate extrapolations. 'The Year of the Snake' that commences from 10th February is associated with Water since all years ending with '2' or '3' are 'Water' years.

It is a rare occurrence which happens once in 60 years. Last time this happened, the year was 1953 when Dwight Eisenhower was President, a man was yet to walk on the moon and nobody knew who Elvis was!

The previous years of snake have been tumultuous with events like 9/11 in 2001 or the Tiananmen Square in 1989, but the soothing properties of water will ensure a much more peaceful and harmonious year this time. The Water Snake years also see great advances in medicine.

As far as industry is concerned, Water makes Earth more fruitful hence industries like transport, shipping, infrastructure are likely to succeed. On the contrary, since Fire would be overwhelmed by Water, Oil and Gas and Utilities might not do so well.

The Water Snake's movements are irregular which might be reflected in unpredictable climactic patterns and natural disasters across the globe.

Chinese Zodiac definitely has value. AlignedSigns.com, the makers of this infographic, bring this and many other tools like the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator \(MBTI\) and Western Astrology, in an effort to empower members and put them in touch with their unique personality. If one is fully aware of who they are then they are likely to be more satisfied in work, have more fulfilling relationships and be at greater peace with themselves. Being happier and healthier in mind, body, and soul is the key belief driving behind alignedsigns.com.
