“DataMEDS’ objective is to ensure that patients across the country are able to use the latest technologies to access appropriate treatments and bring more efficient care to communities with limited access,” said Gerald Commissiong, Interim Co-CEO of DataMeds AI. “I look forward to showcasing our team’s work, outlining our vision of how patient ownership of their data will improve patient care while also reducing provider data access frustrations, and interacting with other leading healthcare providers to discuss how to improve healthcare access for those who need it."

DataMeds AI will highlight its Health Lives Here initiative, patient health-data ownership, and expanding access to telehealth and pharmaceutical services at the national summit.

The 2026 National Telehealth and Virtual Care Summit offers attendees the opportunity to view key strategies to improve healthcare delivery, optimize quality patient care and outcomes, increase accessibility, enhance data analytics, and reduce costs. The summit will unite healthcare leaders, clinicians, technology experts, and policymakers to explore the evolving landscape of digital health and virtual care delivery.
