Truss Announces Partnership with Outtalent to Increase Access to Tech Talent in Central Asia

Strategic partnership connects talented tech professionals in Central Asia with the companies that need them

Explore the strategic partnership between Truss and Outtalent to learn more about how it connects tech talent with the companies that need their skills.

MILWAUKEE, WI, UNITED STATES, September 29, 2026 / EINPresswire.com/ -- Truss is an established employer of record provider in Central Asia and the Caucasus regions that provides an end-to-end global hiring platform to help global tech companies find the remote talent they need in emerging markets. Outtalent is a company based in Kyrgyzstan and registered in the United States that performs a similar function, helping talented tech professionals find career opportunities with elite companies in Silicon Valley. A strategic partnership between Truss and Outtalent increases access to remote tech talent in Central Asia for global tech companies and helps talented professionals find careers with successful tech companies.

Outtalent, backed by Y Combinator, was co-founded by CEO Tilek Mamutov. The company helps tech professionals in emerging markets like Kyrgyzstan prepare for interviews and find careers with top tech companies such as Google, Meta, Uber, Amazon, Microsoft, and more. The tech pioneer pairs potential job candidates with mentors to help them find and prepare for jobs with elite tech companies around the world. To date — Outtalent has helped talented tech professionals receive more than 270 qualifying job offers with more than 30 tech companies around the globe.

The partnership between Truss and Outtalent fills in a gap in the hiring process. Many talented tech professionals who work with Outtalent to find careers are not willing or not yet ready to relocate — and that is where Truss steps in. Truss provides additional opportunities for these individuals who are not ready to relocate, connecting them with remote roles at growing tech companies in the United States. With a newly-established legal entity in Kyrgyzstan where Outtalent is based, Truss will handle all aspects of international hiring to include employee contracts, global payroll, onboarding, and compliance with local labor laws.
