In an effort to make the driving experience as pleasant as possible Hunt Transportation has updated their rider policy. This new policy is intended to give the Hunt drivers much more flexibility in who they can take with them on trips. One of the more significant changes is the ability to take children along. Although children under 4 require a non-driving parent along as well, children ages 4-18 are able to ride without non-driver supervision.

Specifically the new policy allows the following riders at no cost:

- Spouse, which includes "common law" spouse where permitted by law
- One child, stepchild, foster child, niece/nephew, or grandchild
- One adult age 19 or older

"We want truckers to be able to take family, or even a friend, along on rides at no cost, makes the rigors of being an over-the-road driver much more tolerable. The time away from home and family is hard, but if you have a loved one along for the ride it's not so bad," says Andy Brabec, Director of Communications for Hunt Transportation.

Hunt Transportation Jobs recognized that having passengers on rides was a significant benefit to its flatbed trucking jobs drivers. Not only does it help with the morale of the driver, but it also improves safety by having someone to help watch for hazards and assist in keeping the driver alert. Hunt is always looking for ways to improve the driver experience, and this new policy is evidence of that mindset.
