

Get ready for Mother's Day 2013 with the help of Parcel2Go

/EINPresswire.com/ UK (Submitpressrelease123.com - press release) No matter whether you're saying it with flowers, chocolates or some other particularly personal gift, making sure that you let your mum know how much you care on Mother's Day is hugely important.

Thanks to the considerable range of domestic and international courier services from Parcel2Go that are available, it's simple to stay in touch even if you can't be there on the day itself - just plan ahead and use a courier service to ensure your gift turns up on time and in perfect condition.

This year, Mothering Sunday falls on March 10, and anyone planning on shipping a package to a worldwide destination using an economy service will typically need to allow three to five days for delivery, although some destinations may attract slightly longer shipping times. If it is a case of a last-minute rush however, Parcel2Go's same day delivery and express services are available, and can ensure your Mother's Day gift reaches its destination within the UK in just a matter of hours if necessary.

It's important to remember that certain items are not safe to be sent via courier, such as perfumes, cheques or perishable goods. Anyone who is unsure whether their gift idea is on the prohibited items list should check before making a purchase.

Richard Mercer, marketing director at Parcel2Go, said: "All sons and daughters know how difficult mums can be to buy for, and it really can make a difference not having to worry about whether a package will arrive on time.

"By booking a delivery service from Parcel2Go, people can concentrate on finding the right gift and leave the issue of delivery down to the professionals. The services offered by our courier partners are inexpensive, offer great value for money, and are simple and quick to book."
