/EINPresswire.com/ Her Personal Crisis is the Fuel Behind Her Creativity!

Raleigh, NC March 20, 2013 -- The Series Continues . . .

Earth's survival lies in the hands of the Dylanians. When her mother died unexpectedly, Sadie Mae Stevens was only five. As the years moved on, Sadie and her father drifted apart. Henry Stevens Sr. had grown tired of the strange noises and rumbling that happened in Sadie's room on some nights. Finally, when Sadie is fourteen, her father sends her away to Daufuskie Island, South Carolina. A woman supposedly skilled in breaking the curse off of children like Sadie had been awarded custody of her. Crushed and bruised inside, Sadie turns to Lendra, her mountain with the eye. It was time to dry her tears and find out what really happened to her mother. Within the trunk her mother had left her, Sadie discovered the answer. Enraged by the truth behind her mother's death, Sadie issues a challenge to a powerful creature from another realm—the Gordite Witch.

About the Author:

Max W. Miller picked up a pen when she was in a personal crisis; her son had gone to prison. She realized she had to re-invent herself in a positive way in order to survive. The result of her private battle has been the creation of four page turning stories.

Max is a writer of Speculative Fiction. She enjoys creating characters with powers that earthlings cannot scientifically explain away—events challenging traditional reasoning. Max believes that her stories bring to the forefront of our consciousness, an understanding that the paranormal is very normal in some realms. Although writing for teens and young adults, her SCI-FI / FANTASY books are enjoyed by all ages.

In the summer of 2013, Max plans to release Book 2 in the Legacy of Sadie Mae Stevens series. Sadie Mae was the second book that Max wrote after her debut novel, Blood Melt. Max's goal is to create a voice with positive messages for families in crisis. She hopes that through her books, opportunities will present itself to motivate others.
