

College Golf Scholarship Advisors Announces Sean Benson As Promising College Golf Recruit

/EINPresswire.com/ College golf is one of the fastest growing sports in the nation, and golf programs at major universities continue to gain recognition. Sean Benson is a high school Sophomore from Billings, Montana that shows major promise as a future college recruit.

Golf is one of the fastest growing sports at the college level in the U.S. The NCAA is giving more and more recognition and funding for college golf recruiting, and golf scholarship positions are becoming more competitive. Mens college golf programs, especially for Division I schools are expanding and growing as the sport becomes more popular among college aged students.

College Golf Scholarship Advisors would like to present Sean Benson, one of the top up-and-coming high school golfers from Billings, Montana. Sean will be graduating in 2015 from Billings Senior High and has already made waves in the junior and high school golf community, participating in nationally ranked tournaments all over the country. In addition to his already thriving junior golf career, Sean is already showing great marks academically, with a 3.61 GPA and Math Honors.

Sean already has a vast resume of tournaments attended, including RMJGT Sunrise at ASU, Montana State Amateur, Big I Tournament, RMJGT Banbury Classic, US Junior Amateur Qualifier, Montana State Junior Championship and Big Sky State Games. His lowest tournament score is a 67, his highest is an 80. He played the RMJGT Sunrise at ASU and came from back 5 shots to win. In the Montana State Amateur he made the championship flight the first year he played. During the Golf Channel Drive, Chip, and Putt he went to nationals at age 8. He made All State High School Golf 2012 and went to The Optimist International Championship in Ingersol Canada in 2009 and Jr. Championship in Red Cliff, Alberta in 2010. At the Big I Tournament in Bozeman Montana Sean won his division and also had a hole-in-one.

Sean is a very promising future recruit for college golf programs and hopes to major in Mechanical Engineering. He is hopeful in continuing his golf career at the college level and will make an excellent addition to any collegiate golf program.
