Smaller Earth prides itself on providing top quality volunteering abroad and working abroad opportunities and the selection of programs it has to offer for 2013 is no exception. Varying programs depending on the needs in certain areas, new and exciting opportunities are always available and suitable for everyone from the seasoned pro, to the first time volunteer.

Teaching overseas in Vietnam.

The flexible work visa is always popular amongst gap year students. It allows travellers to see the world whilst having experienced work abroad and earned a little spending money for the trip. Australia, New Zealand and Canada are choice destinations with programs offered in various specialisations.

Ski buffs will be pleased to note the Canadian ski season work program. These are always popular in Canada, renowned for the fantastic ski resorts with optimum snow. Canada is also a popular choice amongst gap year travellers who may not have reached America's legal drinking age of 21, allowing an opportunity to work hard and play hard in the busy après ski environment.

The Australian outback experience is also a firm favourite. Handsomely paid as far as working holidays go, many young people embarking on a gap year find the combination of this, plus an exciting role on an Australian ranch working with horses or high octane farm vehicles, plus the security of a family environment throughout the placement, an attractive prospect.

Working with children is another popular program. In 2013, Smaller Earth participants can look to visit America, China or Africa for employment and experiences. Au Pair positions give a unique insight into family life where the culture is often completely different to that experienced at home. The security and stability of being welcomed into a family unit as a valued member is a reassuring touch for first-time participants, or those who are stepping into a less familiar culture.

Teaching positions are usually based around teaching English as a foreign language. Currently, Smaller Earth are offering the opportunity to share English language skills with children in Vietnam. A country ever-increasing in popularity amongst gap year travellers, Smaller Earth have been offering participants the opportunity to see some of the beautiful sights and wonders of this country for some years. The program price actually includes the TEFL (Teaching English as a Foreign Language) qualification, whilst for those who already hold the qualification a substantial discount is available.

Smaller Earth is currently working hard to establish its own language schools. The first of these will be located in Prague and will focus on TEFL. This is a fantastic city to visit and with the TEFL qualification and Smaller Earth's job support you could get to work there as an English teacher once the course is complete. The pilot course is running in July of this year and will thereafter be running on a monthly basis.

As usual with Smaller Earth programs, all participants are supported by the vast network of experienced and knowledgeable staff throughout, with a focus on customer satisfaction. Programs vary in length from as little as one week, to over a year and the friendly team at Smaller Earth will be happy to guide any prospective traveller into a dream holiday.

Smaller Earth provide a range of once in a lifetime Gap Year opportunities to volunteer, work and travel abroad. Whether it's teaching English in Asia, working as an Au Pair in America or coach sports in Africa, Smaller Earth has a program to suit every taste.
