

EIN News Launches Web Site to Track New Bird Flu Crisis

/EINPresswire.com/ April 16, 2013 /EIN News/--A new web site that exclusively tracks the growing bird flu crisis, has been launched by EIN News, a world-leading real time news indexing service.

The site, <http://h7n9birdflu.einnews.com>, monitors the new flu strain that is causing a mounting toll of deaths in China, and which researchers suspect may be linked to the recent discovery of more than 20,000 dead pigs, birds, and other animal life found floating in Shanghai's Huangpu river. The h7n9 virus had never before been known to cross over from animals to humans.

Other EIN web sites are tracking this developing story and related news, including:
