

Illinois Trial Lawyers Group Renames Headquarters after Corboy & Demetrio Co-Founder

/EINPresswire.com/ The Illinois Trial Lawyers Association has renamed its headquarters after the late Chicago lawyer Phil Corboy.

The Illinois Trial Lawyers Association has renamed its headquarters, the Philip H. Corboy Center for Justice, after the late co-founder of the Chicago law firm of Corboy & Demetrio, Phil Corboy, Sr. Gov. Pat Quinn and Illinois Senate President John Cullerton were among those who gathered at the dedication ceremony in Springfield on April 10, 2013, to honor whom the ABA has called the "Jack Nicklaus" of trial lawyers.

Phil Corboy believed in the law and in making sure "people who were often left out" were represented in the legal system, Gov. Quinn said. "I think his commitment to the law will last forever."

Philip Harnett "Flip" Corboy, partner at Corboy & Demetrio and the son of the late Phil Corboy, and Mary Dempsey, the late Mr. Corboy's wife, stand by the new sign at the dedication of the Philip H. Corboy Center for Justice in Springfield

Philip Harnett "Flip" Corboy, Jr., a partner at Corboy & Demetrio, told the crowd of his father, "I was proud and happy to work with him for 26 years before his death. I had a chance to understand him not only as a father, but also as a lawyer."

"I saw the dedication that he had towards this association, its members and, most importantly, to our clients," Corboy said, adding that his father "reveled" in getting involved in the legislative process in Springfield.

The late Mr. Corboy's wife Mary Dempsey; Illinois Senate President John Cullerton; and ITLA President Gregory L. Shevlin also spoke at the event. Phil Corboy, Sr. was President of ITLA from 1963-1964.
