

Christine Wu, Violinist, To Back CeeLo Green On The Voice, May 8

/EINPresswire.com/ Classical virtuoso and crossover artist Christine Wu set to perform live with CeeLo Green

On the heels of her recent solo performance backing Andrea Bocelli and Jennifer Lopez on Dancing With The Stars, violinist Christine Wu is now set to perform live on May 8 episode of NBC's The Voice. The classical virtuoso and crossover artist will back CeeLo Green, in a guest performance of his new song "Only You."

Wu's May 8th performance will add to several previous Voice appearances, including performances with 3rd season winner, Cassadee Pope. Wu also plays regularly on American Idol and America's Got Talent, and is a solo violinist for David Foster and Paul Anka.

On learning she would back CeeLo, May 8 on The Voice, Wu said, "I already know this is going to be an incredible experience! Everything CeeLo does is cutting edge and over the top. I can't wait!"

A violinist since age 3, Wu made the risky decision in 2006 to leave her tenured position with the Houston Symphony Orchestra, to pursue a career in the recording, television, and film industry. She has since composed, arranged, and performed strings with a long and diverse list of A-list musical artists, including Beyoncé, Celine Dion, AR Rahman, Bono, and Kiss, to name a just few.

Christine Wu is also a composer, cellist, filmmaker, and ballerina. She is currently working with producer and songwriter Courtney Blooding to complete her first original EP. She also recently recorded a Butch Walker track with producer Keith Urban.

In addition to continuing her work in the recording industry, Wu plans to produce artistic films featuring her original musical compositions and dance.
