

Comrise Establishes a 'Big Data' Partnership with Beijing Institute of Technology

/EINPresswire.com/ Comrise, a global consulting firm specializing in Managed IT, Big Data, and Workforce Solutions, establishes a partnership with Beijing Institute of Technology to further develop "Big Data" Solutions in the Greater China and Asia-Pacific market.

Comrise, a global consulting firm specializing in Managed IT, Big Data, and Workforce Solutions, is excited to announce its' newly-formed partnership with Beijing Institute of Technology.

The partnership between the two organizations will help further facilitate the establishment of Comrise's "Big Data" solutions within the Greater China and Asia-Pacific market, while providing hands-on experience and research and development opportunities to students and faculty of Beijing Institute of Technology, within "Big Data."

"We are thrilled about the opportunity to partner with a reputable university such as Beijing Institute of Technology. The market in China possesses a vast number of opportunities, in terms of "Big Data." Therefore, with the support and experience of the team at Beijing University of Technology and our presence across the Asia-Pacific region, we hope to be able to further provide support and value to our local and multinational customers," says Rob Bigini, VP, Business Development & Big Data.

"This is an absolute win-win partnership for both organizations," says Dr. Kevin Zhang, Assistant Dean and Associate Professor for the School of Computer Science at Beijing Institute of Technology. "Through this partnership, our faculty will be able to leverage Comrise's extensive presence and experience in the Asia-Pacific markets to ensure that our undergraduate and graduate students continue to develop skills and knowledge that is relevant and impactful when they enter the workforce, especially in areas such as "Big Data.""
