

.JOBS Offers Top Ten Best States, Cities And Companies For New Graduates To Find Jobs

/EINPresswire.com/ .JOBS, (www.usa.jobs) the only top level domain dedicated to job listings, has determined the top ten best cities, states and companies with the most job opportunities for anyone looking for a job this summer.

While the graduating class of 2013 enters a stronger job market than in recent years, new grads may find that certain areas of the country are experiencing a slower rate of recovery from the recession than others, with fewer employers looking to hire. According to Matt Embrescia, President and COO of .JOBS, (USA.jobs) the world's premiere top-level domain (TLD) for websites containing job listings, there are a propensity of positions in select regions around the country, if graduates are willing to go where the jobs are. And for anyone looking for jobs over the summer, .JOBS offers a list of the companies with the most jobs openings.

.JOBS, which offers job seekers the opportunity to locate jobs by desired geographic area (Cleveland.jobs, Texas.jobs.), occupation (Nursing.jobs), or a combination of both (ClevelandNursing.jobs, Hyatt-Veterans.jobs) has tapped into its national base of job listings to create the following lists of the top ten states, cities and companies that contain the most job opportunities:

About .JOBS

Launched in 2006, .JOBS functions on the internet as a top-level domain (TLD), similar to .COM and .ORG, but for the specific purpose of producing websites that contain job listings. Since its launch, DirectEmployers Association has worked towards building the .JOBS Universe to include company specific sites such as ATT.jobs, IBM.jobs and location and occupational specific sites such as US.jobs, California.jobs, Technology.jobs and Manufacturing.jobs. All 50 states, along with Guam and Puerto Rico, are represented in the .JOBS Universe resulting in over 120,000 employers cooperating to publish over one million jobs on a daily basis to thousands of .JOBS websites.
