Green coffee beans are actually the unroasted coffee beans. When roasted, they lose some of their health beneficial abilities but as unroasted they are enriched with the natural properties that are beneficial for health. Health experts tested these green coffee beans in the laboratory. From clinical tests, health experts found that unroasted coffee beans are enriched with a natural antioxidant compound chlorogenic acid. This compound has lots of health beneficial abilities along with a natural boost to the weight loss process.

A study was conducted at the American Chemical Society's spring national meeting in San Diego to check the effectiveness of green coffee beans. 16 overweight young took part in that study and were given a low dose of green coffee bean extract, a high dose of the same green coffee supplement, and other weight loss supplement. After the usage of few days, subjects were checked clinically and striking results were observed. Subjects taking the full dose of the green coffee extract lost an average of 17.5 pounds in 22 weeks and reduced their overall body weight by 10.5%.

This was really amazing for health experts. Further studies found that the green coffee beans with the abilities of chlorogenic acid not only help in weight loss but they also help in reducing the aging signs, prevent from cancer, maintain a proper level of blood sugar, increase overall energy of the body and promote an overall healthy well being with no negative reaction on health.
