

Retinitis Pigmentosa Specialist Releases New Retinitis Pigmentosa And Acupuncture Guide

New Retinitis Pigmentosa Acupuncture Guide Released

WESTFIELD, NEW JERSEY, June 5, 2013 / EINPresswire.com/ -- Dr. Andy Rosenfarb, one of very few (only six) practitioners in the world performing micro acupuncture with specialty has released a brand new guide for retinitis pigmentosa patients who are exploring the best retinitis pigmentosa treatment for them in 2013.

Dr. Rosenfarb has been an acupuncturist for fifteen years and has specialized in degenerative eye diseases such as retinitis pigmentosa for the past twelve years. He is also author of two books on the subject of Chinese medicine and eyes.

Retinitis Pigmentosa Specialist Dr. Andy Rosenfarb

"While there is no known cure for RP, I want people who are suffering with retinitis pigmentosa to know that there are successful ways to manage retinitis pigmentosa by slowing the degenerative process and possibly recovering some vision loss. This is why I developed the free Retinitis Pigmentosa Acupuncture Guide to help people determine if acupuncture is an option for them." explained Dr. Rosenfarb.

In the US, 100,000 people have retinitis pigmentosa which can cause retinal deterioration and blindness. The main risk factor is a family history of retinitis pigmentosa. RP is an uncommon condition.

RetinitisPigmentosaTreatment.com is an education site for the retinitis pigmentosa community. The site offers resources, treatment options and retinitis pigmentosa success stories using acupuncture. You can download a free sixty minute audio on retinitis pigmentosa and acupuncture by visiting the site.
