

CCVS 2013 to continue its success in Wuhan

China's first and largest nationwide commercial vehicles show

WUHAN, CHINA, July 12, 2013 /EINPresswire.com/ -- After its debut in 2012, China Commercial Vehicles Show 2013 (CCVS) will be held on 30 October-2 November at the Wuhan International Expo Center. As China's first and largest nationwide exhibition dedicated to commercial vehicles, it will see nearly all the reputable brands of commercial vehicle manufacturing, accessories and spare parts, maintenance and testing services, and automotive supplies from home and abroad.

CCVS takes IAA Commercial Vehicles Show (Hannover) as a model, and aims to become Asia's largest commercial vehicles show with international reach. This year, the scale of the show is expected to reach 80,000 sqm (2012: 60,000 sqm); the number of exhibitors and exhibits will be further enlarged with more state-of-the-art industry technologies; and more activities will be presented during the show.

Currently, the exhibitor invitation work is in full swing. Many enterprises have shown great interests in the event, and some producers of trucks, special purpose vehicles, accessories and parts have confirmed to participate. Last year, the fair attracted mainstream vehicle producers to gather in Wuhan, which include FAW Jiefang, Dongfeng Motor, Sinotruk, BAIC Motor, Shaanxi Automobile, JAC Motors, Mercedes-Benz, Scania, GAC HINO Motors, C&C Trucks, SAIC-IVECO Hongyan, MAXUS, YANGTSE, JMC, Wuling Motors, and Wuhan Bus Company. For the area of accessories and spare parts, more than 100 renowned manufacturers from home and abroad gathered to support the show, which are ContiTech, PALFINGER, Hyva, SAF, Guangdong FUWA, Shenzhen Cadro, Shanghai Shenyi, Zhenjiang BAOHUA, Guangzhou Jiaheng, and Zhejiang Tianyuan. Moreover, in the special purpose vehicles area, industry giants such as CIMC, ZOOMLION, AVIC Special Equipment, Tri-Ring Group and China Sanjiang Space Group, strived to present their strength here. This year, the number of exhibitors and exhibits will be further enlarged, which cover mainstream global producers of trucks, special purpose vehicles and related automotive parts, various vehicles including heavy truck, middle truck, light truck, pick-up truck, light bus, special purpose vehicle and specialty car as well as accessories and spare parts.

The concurrent activities during the show include a wide range of high-standard industrial forums and conferences to help all participants gain maximum benefits through CCVS. China International Commercial Vehicles Summit 2013, The Forum on the Development of China Special Purpose Vehicle Industry, test driving of trucks and driving skill demonstration, to name just a few, are all highlighted activities under planning.

As the organizer of CCVS and an experienced fair company with global resources, Hannover Milano Fairs Shanghai Ltd puts more emphasis on the invitation of overseas visitors this year in addition to the promotional work and publicity within nation. It is believed that CCVS 2013 will definitely surpass the previous one and maintain a good developing momentum. (www.ccvs.asia)
