QlikView, Crystal Reports, Xcelsius, PowerPivot and Crystal Dashboard Design Training from SkillForge

SkillForge, a technical and business skills training provider to companies, institutions and individuals across North America, has announced a comprehensive set of Business Intelligence training courses in a variety of topics. These courses cover many of the top business intelligence tools in use today and include QlikView Training, PowerPivot Training, Crystal Reports Training and Xcelsius Training. All courses are taught by a live instructor and can be taken either as live, online training or can be delivered as a custom onsite group class.

SkillForge was founded by trainers with over 15 years of experience in the technical and business skills training industry. The addition of a full range of Business Intelligence Training courses provides students with the opportunity to conveniently and cost-effectively learn the most popular Business Intelligence tools from their home or office.

"Business Intelligence has emerged as a valuable tool to measure key performance indicators for many companies. Our live, instructor-led Business Intelligence Training courses can get Business Analysts and other IT professionals quickly up to speed on the most in-demand Business Intelligence tools in the market today," said Joel Wurffel, Principal at SkillForge. "Students can now quickly and easily learn these tools without ever leaving their home or office - and our courses are never cancelled due to low enrollment."

About SkillForge: SkillForge is a leading provider of technical and business skills courses to companies, institutions and individuals across North America. Over 120 courses are available for delivery onsite or online.
