Us lenderscomparison.com is launching a comparison site where borrowers can have all the best and most reputable payday loan providers at their fingertips.

On US Lenders Comparison site, all payday loan services are reviewed and respectable to those in need of some extra cash. US Lenders Comparison finds lenders based on if they are licensed in each state, have physical store fronts, are U.S. based, display contact information, and have a privacy policy. Lenders are also rated on Better Business Bureau (BBB) ratings, accreditation and complaints. US Lenders Comparison strives to protect their customers with facts and tools on payday lending with their new comparison site.

On US Lenders Comparison comparison site, borrowers can choose from several reputable lenders that are ranked by customer satisfaction, loan amount they offer and APR percentage. The following is a list of top lenders borrowers can find on the comparison site.

There are 4 types of Lenders those borrowers should be aware of which include:

State Licensed – lenders licensed by individual states and adhere to state laws.

Out-of-State – these lenders can either be licensed in their own state and export their laws into the borrower's state or not be licensed and comply with Federal laws.

Tribal – lenders that comply with U.S. Federal laws and export their tribal laws into the borrower's state.

Foreign-based – these lenders are unregulated and export their laws into the borrower's state.

Borrowers should also take into consideration the lenders pricing. It is important for the borrower to understand the pricing and renewal terms of their loan. There are 2 types of short-term loans:

Payday loans are a single advance on your paycheck. Money is deposited in the borrower's checking account the next business day after approval. After the next paycheck is deposited in the borrower's account, the loan amount fees are automatically withdrawn.

Installment loans – paid in return to lender over multiple paychecks. When applying for this type of loan, the lender and borrower will arrange the number of pay periods and payment amount that will be withdrawn.

Which loan type is better? It really depends on the borrower's situation. With Installment loans, the borrower has a longer time period to pay the loan back and has a lower APR. In regards to a payday loan, the borrower has a shorter time frame to repay the loan but with lower fees. The best way to choose which loan type is right for a borrower's situation is to estimate how long it will take to pay back the loan. For example, if the borrower needs 6 pay periods to pay back a paycheck advance of less than $600, an installment loan is the better option. If the loan is greater than $600, the better options is a payday loan and renew it.
