Rodney Perry reflects on his days as a young Navy Veteran, shares some of experiences & opinions with his audience & allows OVP to share their mission & message

ATLANTA, GEORGIA, USA, August 13, 2013 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Veteran, Actor, Comedian, Radio Host, Philanthropist and Humanitarian Rodney Perry along with Madeline Smith, Freelance Publicist contributed to ensure our nation's Veterans are properly remembered and addressed. Perry believes Veterans and their relevant issues should receive greater recognition, acknowledgement and consideration well beyond the traditional holidays of Veterans Day, Memorial Day and Fourth of July. Service members are Military for the time they serve, but are Veterans for the rest of their lives. So too are those who suffer from the traumatic impact of combat, for many them the real battles do not begin until returning home.

Rodney Perry and Madeline Smith contacted Operation Veteran's Promise to lend their time, energy, microphone and audience to give a greater voice to our Veterans and propel OVP's message to the masses. OVP exist to assist Veterans in need, foster outreach, encourage community and corporate support and establish linkages between available Veterans and Employers who seek the talents, training and discipline Veterans possess.

Perry on schedule to travel to Japan to perform for Troops stationed there, Spoke with Operation Veteran's Promise CEO Michael Angielski this Monday. "At Operation Veteran's promise we are extremely proud of our program and the positive impact OVP will have on the Veterans community. We are grateful and humbled by Rodney and Madeline's offer to speak to their listeners and look forward to the next opportunity to update Rodney, Madeline and their audience as to OVP's progress."
