

Fall is the Perfect Time for Tree Trimming Says Majestic Tree Service

BUTLER, PA, USA, August 15, 2013 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Winter storms can mean costly property damage for homeowners with tall trees. Majestic Tree Service of Butler, Pennsylvania recommends having your trees serviced in the fall to avoid this.

With winter fast approaching, it is time for responsible homeowners to start looking at the best ways to protect their home in case of inclement winter weather. While no one wants to think about snow just yet, preparing homes and property for the damage that is likely to happen can save a lot of money in the long run.

Most people prepare for winter by covering any outdoor plants or garden beds, stocking up on anti-freeze for the car and making sure last year's boots and mittens still fit. They do not even stop to consider the damage that can be caused by the trees that surround the home. This is a huge oversight, according to Majestic Tree Service, a tree service contractor in Butler, Pennsylvania.

If a strong snow storm with heavy gusts of winds and sleet surges into the area, old or dying tree branches can easily get knocked loose and land on the roof of the home. Worse yet, the branch may fall on the roof of a car, destroying it, or on people outside the home. Unlike a heavy rainfall which quickly evaporates, snow can stay in place on a branch and turn into ice, adding extra weight to the branch. A weak tree branch can bend or break days after the storm has passed.

The best way to avoid damage from falling tree branches is to have property serviced by a tree company, like Butler based Majestic Tree Service. With years of expertise, a professional tree contractor can spot the telltale signs of dead or dying tree branches. They can trim these portions from the tree, leaving the healthy parts to flourish.

In addition to tree trimming in Butler, Majestic Tree Service also offers landscaping and lawn care services. Visit them online at www.treeservice-pa.com.
