

Detroit Video Production Company Helps to Tell the Story of Local Firefighters

DETROIT, MI, USA, September 5, 2013 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Live Out Loud Productions, a leading Detroit video production company, was recently contracted to work on the production of BURN, a documentary about the lives of Detroit firefighters produced by Denis Leary.

Live Out Loud Productions, a Detroit video production company committed to brand awareness and identity by challenging, inspiring and strengthen viewers, was recently contracted to work on the production of BURN, an award-winning documentary about Detroit firefighters. By providing location audio, camera, and local production services, Live Out Loud Productions helped to bring BURN's important message to audiences all around the globe.

BURN is an action packed, award-winning film about the city of Detroit, told through the eyes of the firefighters on the front lines. From directors Tom Putnam and Brenna Sanchez, and executive producer Denis Leary, this riveting and inspiring film explores human struggles, hope, and personal courage in the face of overwhelming odds.

With vast stretches of abandoned buildings, the highest arson rate in the country, and a budget crisis of epic proportions, the brave men and women of Engine Company 50 in Detroit risk injury, disablement, and death to try and make a difference for the city they call home.

The firefighters' worst fears are realized when a charismatic young fireman is devastatingly injured on the job. The brotherhood is tested when the city turns to new a new fire commissioner to shake up the system with hard line decisions and drastic, often controversial measures. BURN tells the tale of these exceptional firefighters who, despite the challenges and dysfunction they face every day, are attempting to make a difference in the city they continue to believe in.

With slews of gripping firefighting footage intertwined with personal stories of heroism and perseverance among Engine Company 50 staffers, BURN lends depth and detail to these stories of personal courage and perseverance while bringing public awareness to the issues faced by Detroit in its current volatile state.

Based in the Detroit area, Live Out Loud Productions was proud to work on the production of BURN and help to give this story the attention it deserves. This Detroit video production company also helps other businesses, corporations, and non-profit groups to bring their brand story to light. MTV, MSNBC, PBS, Lowes, Ford Motor, AMC and many more local and nationwide companies have turned to Live Out Loud Productions to ensure that their brand message reaches their intended audience.
