

OKfield Launches New Website Where Users Can Leave Their Problems Behind

HELSINKI, FINLAND, September 19, 2013

/EINPresswire.com/ -- The OKfield offers an unusual cocktail of IT technology and thousands of years' experience of releasing from all negative stuff. Now it's possible to find the way out of practically any difficult situation easily, confidentially and without any teaching or preaching.

It's known that offenses, fears, rage, panic, envy, negative emotions burden one's life. Can a person get rid of such burdens by himself, without resorting to psychologists' help, without wasting time on exhausting studying of special literature and without having recourse to auto-training? Is there a guarantee for the problem to be solved, not make it worse? Is it possible to release oneself from an inner problem having spent about an hour of his time?

Once visiting OKfield.com the answers would be obvious and positive.

Let's set mysticism and illusions aside. There is nothing actually supernatural in the project – thousands of years' experience plus IT technologies. OKfield website offers a technique based on accurate apprehension of a problem, its realization and finding the right solution. The methodology upon which the website is based is very simple and at the same time employs several serious psychotherapeutic techniques, which include visualization, free associations, verbalization, intensification of experiences, projection and devaluation, absolution.

In numerous cultures of the world release from something undesirable was accompanied by transfer of its destructive force to a tangible, usually inanimate, item with its consequent elimination using natural elements – it was burnt or buried. It is reflected in many pagan and magical rituals of peoples of Western and Eastern Europe, Central and Latin America, Asia and Africa. It was interesting to find out that people from different countries and cultures have similar scenarios of both life dislocations and ways of release from them.

Individual release from a problem on the OKFIELD is done in an amicable and confidential atmosphere.

If there is still doubt, visit the field where thousands of people from all over the world have left their troubles behind within less than half a year.

New service to get rid of stress.
