

Loretto Family Dentistry Introduces New Noise Reducing Tools to Make Dental Visits Easier

CORINTH, TEXAS, USA, September 23, 2013 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Many adults and children are anxious about visiting the dentist. Loretto Family Dentistry in Corinth, Texas, uses new noise reducing tools to help patients feel relaxed as they wait for their appointment.

For those patients that have anxiety surrounding a visit to the dentist in Corinth TX, there is nothing worse than hearing the sound of the dentist's drill. It is the sound heard in horror movies and scary stories about the evil and sadistic dentist. Though it may not actually cause that much discomfort, studies have shown that the associated noise makes a visit to the dentist's office seem much worse than it is.

The dental professionals of Loretto Dentistry in Corinth have come to understand over the years that many patients have a negative association with the dentist's office and in particular the sound of the drill. To combat this issue, the practice uses only specialized noise reducing tools on all patients. Even patients who come in for a routine tooth cleaning will notice a significant difference in the noise level during the appointment. That's because these noise cancelling tools make very little sound at all compared to traditional tools.

Using new technology, these dental tools nullify the typical buzzing sound that makes many patients uncomfortable. Even those patients who aren't overly scared of the dentist can be made uncomfortable with the buzzing sound made by most dental tools. In removing the noise from their office once and for all, Dr. Kristina Mackie has found that patients feel more relaxed and are more receptive to treatment. Even routine visits are made easier and less intimidating for the patient by using these ultrasonic tools, which vibrate less than traditional tools, giving off much less noise overall.

In addition to using the latest tools, Loretto Family Dentistry emphasizes patient comfort in many other ways. All examination rooms feature comfortable seating and ceiling mounted flat screen televisions, allowing patients to truly relax during the appointment.
