

Investment opportunities as Australian resource stocks strengthen the back of positive economic data out of China

The Pick's team of experienced journalists offer a comprehensive overview of the investment potential of a range of Australian resource stocks.

PERTH, WESTERN AUSTRALIA, AUSTRALIA, October 11, 2013 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Australian resource sector strengthens on the back of positive economic data out of China

Recent months have seen a return of investor confidence and risk appetite to the Australian resources in the wake of diminishing fears of a "hard landing" for the Chinese economy. The rebound is tipped to continue and currently discounted stocks are expected to close the gap between price and value, offering excellent potential for short-term investment gain. The Pick's team of experienced resource journalists again offer a comprehensive overview of the investment potential of a range of Australian resource stocks, along with insider commentary on the state of the sector and the outlook for investors. The Pick represents a complete overview of the current state of play within the Australian junior resources sector.
