

Saint Croix Exteriors - WI & MN Licensed Roofers - Advises Having Roof Inspections Before Winter Arrives

ROBERTS, WI, USA, October 22, 2013 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Saint Croix Exteriors, a roofing company in Hudson, WI offers advice to homeowners for repairing any sections of their roofs that might leak or give way under the harsh, damaging winds and snowstorms during winter.

Saint Croix Exteriors, a roofing company in Hudson, WI advises homeowners to repair any sections of their roofs that might leak or give way under the harsh, damaging winds and snowstorms during winter. This Wisconsin roofing contractor, also licensed to work in Minnesota, wants homeowners to have their roofs inspected before winter, especially if the roof is more than ten years old. The company provides free estimates and consultations to residential and commercial customers.

Saint Croix Exteriors, a licensed, bonded and insured company, warns business owners to take precautions against the calamities of winter, which can be extensive as well as costly. It is imperative for building owners to determine the exact conditions of their roofs before winter's harshness can add another year of destructive winter activities to the structure.

"Count on us to serve you with all the roofing services you require, from installation to repairs to insurance claims, as well as home exterior needs. These include siding, gutters and windows. It is our practice to provide you with free estimates and consultations. Then, we sit down with you to talk about your options, taking the type of roof, problem and price into consideration," says Matthew Rappell, company spokesperson.

The company provides a number of residential and commercial services roofing services to customers throughout the Saint Croix Valley, including:
