

FXOpen Holds Second Leg of Forex Article Contest

AUCKLAND, NEW ZEALAND, November 18, 2013 /EINPresswire.com/ -- FXOpen has just launched the second round of the Forex Article Contest. The idea for this competition surfaced back in September, and was warmly welcomed by the Forex community. The second leg of the competition is scheduled from November 11th till December 13th.

The objective of the Forex Article Contest is to encourage Forex traders to become better informed about the structure and operational principles of financial markets.

"We strive to discover new talent among casual observers of the Forex market dynamics, as well as to raise the educational background of beginners," said Denis Peganov, Director of FXOpen NZ Limited.

"The contestants will be able to decide for themselves the topic of their articles," added Peganov. "We intend not to limit participants' creativity so there is only one broad category for all the submissions: it is called Forex Trading."

A big change for this round is that there will be 5 prizes. Authors of the most valuable material will be rewarded from the US$1,400 competition prize pool, with the winner receiving the main prize of US$500.

The opinions of the FXOpen analysts/judging panel, along with the popularity of the participants' entries in social networks (i.e., the number of 'likes' and appropriate comments) will determine the prize-winners.

As before, a lucky, randomly chosen social networker who votes for one of the contest articles will win an additional prize of US$100!
