"The holidays are such a hard time for people that don't have the means to celebrate. It's particularly hard for families with children. The sponsorships are a chance for us to give back and do something that helps someone directly and we make the most of it. We spend the morning shopping, then wrapping presents and ending with a lunch. It's a chance for us to do something for someone else and at the same time spend some time together outside of the workplace. The donations have been so well-received and the idea so well-supported by our staff that I'm sure this is something we'll continue to do in future years," noted Jones-Damalas.

The Skyline network consists of nearly 100 design centers in North America and more than 1,500 team members worldwide. The company offers exhibit rentals and sales, custom-designed graphics and service support. To learn more about Skyline Event Services visit them at <http://www.skylinees.com/>.
