IT Governance Publishing is looking for new authors

ELY, UK, January 27, 2014 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Are you longing to share your extensive experience in business, technology or management? Do you feel that your accumulated knowledge could help others in a similar situation, or just starting out in their careers?

If so, have you ever considered writing a book or authoring a documentation toolkit? Find out more here: www.itgovernancepublishing.co.uk/authors/write-for-us.aspx.

IT Governance Publishing (ITGP) is keen to publish well-informed materials, written in a clear, concise, practical style, with a fresh approach, not found elsewhere. The subjects we are interested in include (not exclusively) standards, governance, risk and compliance, ITIL, ITSM and business management skills. In particular, we are currently looking for titles in the following areas:

• Cyber resilience (e.g. incident response and stress testing)
• Big data / Internet of Things
• Technical business/management computing guides
• Cyber Security (e.g. the 20 Critical Security Controls)
• Project management
• Risk Management (including ISO31000)
• BYOD
• Standards/frameworks compliance guides

The guidance and support that we can offer authors, means we are there along every part of the journey, from the original proposal through to publication and beyond. Authors come to ITGP for our well-known ability to work with thought leaders from the global stage, capture their perspective and drive this knowledge out into the marketplace, with market-leading publications.

If you think you have the knowledge and skills to produce a publication that will be at the forefront of the IT-GRC market and would like to write for us, then please get in touch: The IT Governance Publishing Team.

Notes to Editors

IT Governance Publishing (ITGP) sources and creates publications - pocket guides, books, tools, posters and training aids - that fall within the broad range of IT Governance subjects, including information risk, compliance, risk management, business continuity, IT service management, and more. We are the world's only niche IT governance publisher and all of our publications are written by real-world practitioners.
