CHICAGO, IL - The Chicago IT services team at VitalTech Solutions is proving they have a heart by providing free IT infrastructure support for A Giving Heart Foundation. The company installed and will continue to support all of the Foundation's IT needs.

"Providing IT infrastructure service and support is the perfect way for us to support A Giving Heart. By providing our services at no charge, A Giving Heart is saving thousands of dollars every year. Those are budget dollars that they can put towards their research, advocacy and outreach programs or use to support the families who have a child suffering from congenital heart disease," explained Michael Berk, Partner, Business Development at VitalTech Solutions (www.vitaltechsolutions.com) and Treasurer of the Board of Directors of A Giving Heart Foundation.

A Giving Heart Foundation funds initiatives and seeks partnerships to eliminate the need for babies and children to have open-heart surgery. The Foundation relies on donations to support their work, which consists of research into congenital heart disease as well as family support. Family support includes helping families pay for medical costs that are not covered by insurance, paying for the travel and hotel costs associated with treatment and providing psychological support and services including educational materials and referrals to mental health professionals.

"VitalTech has welcomed A Giving Heart Foundation into their family. The VitalTech team help make sure our technological needs are met and have financially supported and volunteered at our events. They are true partners working to eliminate the need for babies and children to have open heart surgery," said Holly Messick, the Executive Director of A Giving Heart Foundation.
