Oklahoma City, comes in to the break with the best record in the West at 43-12 and if the playoffs were to begin today, the team would have home court advantage, while the Heat are second in the Eastern Conference at 37-14. Miami is just 2 1/2 games behind the Indiana Pacers for the best record in the conference. The East vs West game will get underway at 8:00 eastern time.

The starting lineup for the Western Conference will be Stephen Curry and James Harden in the backcourt, Kevin Durant at the small forward position, and Blake Griffin and Kevin Love up front.

Griffin, is having a MVP caliber season with a average of 24.2 points per game and 9.8 rebounds. With Chris Paul out with a shoulder injury in early January, Blake Griffin led the Clippers to a 12-4 record without their superstar point guard in the lineup.

After leading the Pacers to the best record in the National Basketball Association, Pacers forward Paul George, will be making his first start in the All Star game. Also expected to start for the Eastern Conference will be Cleveland guard Kyrie Irving at the point, Dwayne Wade at SG, and LeBron James and Carmelo Anthony rounding out the starting 5.

Superstar guard and all time great Kobe Bryant, has been ruled out due to a knee fracture he suffered against the Memphis Grizzlies in December, and will be replaced by Rockers guard James Harden in the starting lineup for the Western Conference.

When it comes to s rising to the top of the list when it comes to elite players, Portland guard Damian Lillard, is at the very top. The guard is considered one of the most improved players this season, and one of the primary reasons why the Trail Blazers are the current 5th seed in the West, with a impressive record of 36-17. Lillard, will be one of four players making their All Star debut on Sunday night.
