"I don't think that people realize that last year texting and driving accounted for more deaths and injuries than did DUI," Mr. Landress said in the report. "We deal with the way a person's life is changed forever because someone decided to pick up their phone in a car."

The Colorado Trial Lawyers Association [\[http://www.ctlanet.org\]](http://www.ctlanet.org), of which Mr. Landress is a member, has joined forces with EndDD [\[http://enddd.org\]](http://enddd.org) to raise awareness of the issue and encourage lawmakers to up the penalties for texting while driving—currently set at a $50 in Colorado.
