

Rick Arbutine Says SunRail Rail System Will Reduce Commute Times For Orlando Area Homeowners

ORLANDO, FL, USA, April 11, 2014 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Rick Arbutine, a REALTOR® serving the Orlando luxury home market, says the newly opening SunRail train system will benefit home buyers in the Greater Orlando area by shortening commute times to downtown Orlando.

ORLANDO, Fla. - Rick Arbutine, a specialist in the Orlando luxury home market with Charles Rutenberg Realty, says the newly opening SunRail train system will shorten commute times for homeowners in the Greater Orlando area who work downtown.

This means home buyers in communities such as DeBary, Sanford, Lake Mary, Longwood, Altamonte Springs, Maitland, and Winter Park will have easier commute access to downtown Orlando, potentially benefiting property values in those communities, according to Arbutine.

He says neighborhoods near the train stations should benefit the most from the new rail line.

"The SunRail trains are a big deal, especially in the communities surrounding the train stations, because they are going to make it more convenient to live in the suburban communities of Orlando and take the train to work," he says.

He says that workers will be able to get work done on their morning ride, adding an extra level of convenience as well.

Arbutine also notes that the trains are engineered to be fuel-efficient with a low footprint on the environment.

"These are state-of-the-art trains with low-emissions diesel engines to get residents from one end of Greater Orlando to the other," he says.

Arbutine says all train stations are over 95% complete, with most at 98% and above.

"The expected launch date for SunRail train service is set for May 1, 2014," he says. "I'll be happy to help Orlando home buyers find a home near one of the train stations."
