

CharlotteRelocation.org Offers Domain And Website For Sale By Auction With No Reserve

CHARLOTTE, NC, USA, April 15, 2014 /EINPresswire.com/ -- CharlotteRelocation.org is being offered for sale at an auction with no reserve. The real estate marketing and website development company is donating 10% of the proceeds to OurRescue.org, a non-profit organization that aggressively fights international child sex slavery.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. - CharlotteRelocation.org is being offered for sale by auction, with 10% of the proceeds going to OurRescue.org, a non-profit charity equipped with advanced technology and military expertise to remove children from the sex trade internationally.

The auction page is located at <https://flippa.com/3052750-exact-match-domain-is-about-1-year-old-no-reserve> and is linked on the home page of www.charlotterelocation.org, with bidding starting at only $500 with no reserve.

According to Top Seller Sites LLC, the auction includes the domain, control of an associated Newsvine account (charlotterelo), and control of an associated Twitter account (Charlotte_Relo).

Kevin Harper says the website could be useful for real estate agents and brokers, relocation companies, and other affiliated businesses interested in reaching an audience looking for Charlotte Relocation services.

"The exact match domain makes this website a great opportunity for a local agent or broker to develop the Charlotte relocation business from the steady flow of businesses and people relocating to Charlotte, including Charlotte's Fortune 500 executives and employees, physicians, and small businesses," he says.

He notes that Charlotte has a vibrant and diverse economy, with high-profile companies such as Bank of America, BASF, Chiquita, Microsoft, MetLife, and many more headquartered in Charlotte or with major offices in the area. According to published reports, many of these companies are already planning on bringing in thousands of employees to Charlotte over the next few years.

Harper says he's donating 10% of the proceeds of the sale to OurRescue.org, the website of Operation Underground Railroad, a high-tech organization equipped to find and free child sex slaves and bring the slave traders to justice.

"I first heard about this organization on the Glenn Beck program and was extremely impressed with the mission and strategies of the people behind Operation Underground Railroad," Harper says. "I have three teenage girls, and I can't imagine them having to endure the life of torture that much younger girls (and boys) have to endure when they get into the hands of the child slavery underworld."

The organization is privately funded, but has many years of military and government work experience in this field. As a result, Harper says they know how to coordinate complex stings with local law enforcement, and trains them in the process of tracking and cracking down on the child sex trade.
