

Mission planning cooperation between US airmen and Eastern European countries

SMI's 5th annual Air Mission Planning conference takes place on the 2nd and 3rd June 2014, London, UK

LONDON, UK, April 29, 2014 /EINPresswire.com/

-- For the past few years, U.S. airmen and Eastern European countries have been cooperating on interoperability and planning activities across the region. With the growing tension in Eastern Europe, U.S. airmen have aided air forces in Poland, Slovenia, Lithuania and a dozen other Eastern Europe and Western Asia nations in aerospace terminology, search and rescue, mobility aircraft maintenance, expeditionary air capability and base security.*

Master Sergeant. Simon Merfeld, superintendent of the air adviser branch stated:

"It's an opportunity to exchange information...to take away what we can from their best practices and learn something else about our capabilities."

The concept and benefits of joint planning in modern operations will be discussed in greater detail at the Air Mission Planning conference. Two exceptional presentations to focus on this topic include:

Keynote Presentation on: Armed Forces of Ukraine in international operations

Presented by: Lieutenant General Sergei Drozdov, First Deputy Commander, Ukrainian Air Force

- The main areas of cooperation between Ukraine and foreign countries in the military sphere
- The tasks of the Armed Forces of Ukraine in the international operations
- Conditions and factors affecting the use of the Armed Forces of Ukraine in the international operations
- The impact of the experience of local wars and armed conflicts on the Armed Forces of

Ukraine

Developing an air force capable of handling future threats

Presented by: Joe Kay, Co-owner and Director, Effective Direction

- Developing an interoperable air force
- What are the requirements for the future you need to be planning for now?
- How can you look to integrate systems and processes
