

Award-Winning IT Consultancy BJSS Makes Board Appointments

LEEDS, UNITED KINGDOM, May 1, 2014 /EINPresswire.com/ -- BJSS, the delivery-focused IT consultancy, is pleased to announce the appointment of Stuart Bullock and James Whitehouse to its Board of Directors.

Stuart Bullock joined BJSS in 2006 as a Project Manager and is now Head of Client Services, North with responsibility for the company's Project Centre operations in Leeds, Manchester and Derby.

James Whitehouse joined the company in 2009 after a career in Consultancy and running his own technology company. As Head of Client Services, South, James leads the company's operations in London and Bristol.

BJSS Managing Director Glynn Robinson comments on the appointments: "I'm delighted to welcome James and Stuart to the Board. BJSS is growing rapidly, having opened new offices in New York, Manchester Bristol in the last 18 months. James and Stuart have been instrumental in supporting that growth and their appointments will strengthen the Board and help achieve our objectives of ensuring high-quality delivery, the expansion of our service offerings and sustainable growth."

Profile of Stuart Bullock

Stuart joined BJSS in 2006 as a Project Manager and later took overall responsibility for the Leeds Development Centre. Stuart started his career as a software developer in 1990 and progressed through many roles, including managing the South African subsidiary of one of the world's largest Independent Software Consultancy firms.

Profile of James Whitehouse

James joined BJSS in 2009 and heads the Company's London-based Consultancy, Development, Testing and Infrastructure groups. He has previously held senior roles at PricewaterhouseCoopers Consulting and a niche 'programme turnaround' consultancy. In late 2004, James co-founded a technology business which was acquired after three years.
