

Bulk 22 Ammo Now Available at TacticalGearOps.com

.22 Ammo is hard to come by in today's market. Tactical Gear Ops announces they have received a fresh shipment for customers.

CHARLOTTE, NC, UNITED STATES, May 22, 2014 /EINPresswire.com/ -- TacticalGearOps.com, an online retailer of shooting and tactical gear, has just received a fresh shipment of 'hard to find' .22 ammo. The company specializes in finding bulk ammo available to the public.

"Bulk 22 ammo is very difficult to come by right now for many reasons", Mr. Lee stated, "whether it's the recent lead factory shutting down or other political factors, 22 ammunition is still hard to find."

The Doe Run factory located in Missouri recently shuts down its facilities due to the fact that the EPA is requiring them to update their technology to accommodate the 'Clean Air Act' law. Doing so would prove to be costly to continue its operations so Doe Run decided it was financially better to simply close its doors. Some gun advocates claim the move was political.

The online retailer has also redesigned the site to become more compatible with smartphones and tablets. The site uses responsive web design which allows the design to change depending on the device the customer is using. Mobile usage continues to increase every month so the company decided to move in the direction customers are heading towards.
