

The Electrical Counter Delivers Reliable CCTV Systems to the UK

The online electrical wholesaler from Ashford, The Electrical Counter, can introduce a new range of CCTV systems under trade prices for new and old customers.

ASHFORD, KENT, UK, June 16, 2014 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The online electrical wholesaler from Ashford, The Electrical Counter, can introduce a new range of CCTV systems under trade prices for new and old customers. The company have recognised that security surveillance is highly valued in the current climate, especially for more expensive domestic property. In introducing reliable CCTV systems, customers can ensure a safer environment all round. The addition of a CCTV camera can work as a great deterrent.

The CCTV systems that are available include the ESP (Elite Security Products) CCTV systems. This type of closed-circuit television is built with an acute sense of smoothness with modern 700TVL resolutions cameras which can allow for excellent precision monitoring in such high demanding situations.

The ESP range of CCTV systems at The Electrical Counter are made with TFT monitors which incorporate anti-glare technology and DVR recording systems with up to 1TB of data storage.

The company have made both internal and external CCTV cameras available to everyone. Customers can choose from fixed or varifocal lenses in dome or standard shaped housing. The range is most notably suitable for both day and night time monitoring with many options being available to suit a buyer's specific requirement.

The Electrical Counter can also offer an exciting range of CCTV system. The Integra and BDeye systems from ESP can work simultaneously with the Mobileye app for iPhones and Android systems. This specific technology will allow remote viewing wherever a customer is, using also the PiP (picture-in-picture) function, making surveillance an easy thing.

CCTV is just one of many under trade priced categories that The Electrical Counter can provide.

The company offer a wide range of products including switches & sockets, heating, ventilation, tools, solar, wiring accessories and much more.

The Electrical Counter offer a wide range of electrical products at wholesale price online to the UK.
